Today, more and more companies are looking for Project Managers with a Project Manager Professional (PMP) Certification.

The PMP Project Management Certificate offers the organizational skills necessary to advance your career or a great opportunity if you are changing careers. Project management skills are an essential part of success in any job and in every company.

Project managers are leaders and problem solvers with many skills in their repertoire. Project managers combine business skills, people skills, and a little magic to bring a project in on time, on budget and within the quality needs.

Leaders and managers are not synonymous terms. Leaders impart vision, gain consensus for strategic goals, establish direction, and inspire and motivate others. Managers focus on results and are concerned with getting the job done according to the requirements. Even though leaders and managers are not the same, project managers must exhibit the characteristics of both during different phases of the project. Understanding when to switch from leadership to management and then back again is a finely tuned and necessary talent.
